

Crossing the Water

In search for a better life and comfort for families left behind, thousands of Africans cross the Mediterranean or the Red Sea. Captive to extortion, turned away by coast guards or merely drowned, many never make it.

However, this vendor from Senegal made it - peddling wares on a Mediterranean beach in Sardinia, eking out a hard life as reward.

Watch more stories on people, water, struggle and hope on www.thewaterchannel.tv.

The world is water. Join the wave.

TheWaterChannel is a partnership between MetaMeta, Nymphaea, UNESCO-IHE and Cap-Net. This poster is sponsored by the DUPC fund.